MOODY'S ANALYTICS AND CHINA GUANGFA BANK WIN LIQUIDITY RISK TECHNOLOGY IMPLEMENTATION OF THE YEAR AWARD

HONG KONG, May 20, 2016 – Moody's Analytics has been recognized for the strength of its implementation of liquidity risk technology for China Guangfa Bank (CGB) at the Asian Banker Risk Management Awards.

The award for Liquidity Risk Technology Implementation of the Year is for emerging best practices and outstanding achievements of the best risk management teams in financial institutions. This year's award commends improvements in CGB's liquidity risk management, as a result of the bank's collaboration with Moody's Analytics.

"We are honored to receive this award which recognizes the strength and value of the Moody's Analytics liquidity risk management solution," says Noah Berliner, a Managing Director at Moody's Analytics.

"The award further reflects our ongoing commitment to helping our clients achieve an enterprise-wide view of risk, adapt to changing financial markets, and meet evolving regulatory requirements," adds Berliner.

Moody's Analytics enterprise risk solutions help financial institutions calculate their liquidity positions on a continuous basis, generate liquidity compliance reports automatically, deliver compliance reports more efficiently, and reduce the likelihood for error in compliance reports.

Specifically, this year's award recognizes the implementation of Moody's Analytics Regulatory Capital, Liquidity & Compliance Reporting Solution at CGB. The solution provides comprehensive and integrated management for Basel III compliance, liquidity risk management and regulatory reporting. It also leverages on extensive automation, as well as calculation and reporting templates to deliver effective and streamlined regulatory compliance.

This announcement by The Asian Banker adds to Moody's Analytics' expanding list of industry awards, reflecting the company's extensive capabilities and the relevance of its risk management tools to financial institutions worldwide. For a complete list, visit www.moody.com/awards.
