Introducing the CreditLens™ solution

This complete credit lifecycle solution is built on the latest cloud-based technology. It is designed with modular flexibility to meet your business needs, and backed by industry-leading data and analytics. The CreditLens solution is transformative, enabling you to automate every step of your credit process and make smart decisions based on robust insights. Whatever your business goals – more time for customers, better customer experience, improved returns, or increased risk control – this solution can help you get there.
The CreditLens solution may be the last credit lifecycle management solution your business ever needs. Moody's Analytics is continually exploring and investing in the latest technology including machine learning and AI techniques. As we find and perfect new innovative tools and technology, they will be applied in future releases. No down time, no IT involved - these progressive advancements will be built into the solution seamlessly and ready for you to use.

Open Architecture

No more complicated integration set ups or workarounds. The CreditLens solution is built with an open REST API, enabling you to integrate easily with other Moody’s Analytics products or your own in-house systems. Better manage your company's data with the ability to connect instantly to Salesforce or other CRM systems. Use its sophisticated Data Movement Service to migrate data without losing accuracy or lineage.

Easy Configuration

Why spend more money customizing a product you already paid for? The CreditLens solution offers complete configurability for customer adoption and control. Simply add in the templates, models, and fields you require and remove those items that you do not need. Modular licensing allows you to use the solution functionality in whole or in part. You decide how you want to set up and use the solution with no down time or extra costs required.

As an established leader in the financial industry, you can trust that we have the right solutions and expertise in credit to help you transform your business for the future.
